The laws on data privacy change this year. On 25 May, the new General Data Protection Regulations (“GDPR”) come into effect, replacing the Data Protection Act 1998. GDPR tightens how any business collects, stores and uses personal data.

We have carried out a comprehensive audit on our data collection, usage and storage practices, and following some modifications we are satisfied that we are compliant with GDPR. One particular area where our practice has had to change, is that we can no longer rely on “opt-out” clauses. We must now hold individuals specific consent to hold and use their personal data.

George Haines (Itchenor) Ltd has produced a Data Protection Policy which can be found on our website at www.hainesboatyard.com. Your personal data which we hold will be stored and used in accordance with this policy.

- Uses to which your personal data may be put include:
- Management of the relationship and contracts entered into between you and Haines Boatyard and to provide you with any products and services that you request from us as a customer, shareholder, employee, supplier or contractor
- Information we collect when forms are completed on-line at www.hainesboatyard.com
- Processing payroll and pensions for employees
- Maintenance of a shareholder register and payment of any dividends that are declared
- Communicating details of offers, mailshots and newsworthy matters
- Managing Haines Boatyard’s accounting and point of sale system
- Managing Haines Boatyard’s activities and publishing results in both paper and electronic formats
- Use of photographs and video footage in marketing, advertising website and social media

Therefore, in order to continue to hold and use your personal data for the purposes listed above, we require your specific consent.
